Thinking Out Loud

By H. M. L.

"There goes my last refrigerator," remarked a merchant as his truck driver trundled a 1942 model across the sidewalk for delivery. The war is bringing hardships to some lines of business in Nevada County and to others is proving a boon. Durable goods, such as refrigerators and household appliances, with few exceptions will not be manufactured again until the war is over. Merchants handling these lines find themselves with plenty of customers with money in their jeans, but nothing much to sell them.

On the other hand, grocery and dry goods dealers, and purveyors of paints, miscellaneous household articles, not made of metal, find trade extremely brisk. One of the factors in this shift in business activity is due to the increasing number of consummers who have freed themselves from instalment payments. Most wage earners in this territory are achieving the fifth freedom—freedom from debt. They are turning their attention to making small improvements in the appearance and comfort of their homes, in its furnishing and its convenience. A great many find that they can live better than they used to do when a large part of the family income had to go for installments on cars, refrigerators and washing machines.

So far as the payroll of our mining industry is concerned, it is down to about half the amount that it was three years ago. We have lost about 50 per cent of the number employed in the peak years of 1937 to 1939. But a recent survey reveals the fact that a considerable number of our citizens, many of them miners, are employed in the construction of Camp Beale. The weekly checks from this source cashed in Nevada City and Grass Valley total almost $50,000. Apparently the county has traded a large part of its mine payroll for a share in the Camp Beale payroll, perhaps amounting to $200,000 per month. Not so many Nevada County men are employed at Camp Beale, as have left the mines here, but their wages are often double those paid by the mine companies, which are, of course, unable to compete with wartime wage scales.

The construction work at Camp Beale will probably continue until October. Then there will be another shift in employment and in business conditions. Some 40,000 soldiers, including men training in aviation, artillery, and tank operation are expected to move in. Roughly this will mean a camp payroll of more than $2,000,000, because all privates in the army now receive $50 a month.

Of those men now employed in construction at the camp, many will return to mine employment in this county, especially those who have their homes here. Others will follow their contractor employer probably, to other jobs of construction. Whether Nevada City and Grass Valley will receive as large a share of the soldiers' pay check as is now received from the workmen employed at Camp Beale, is a guess. But we believe it will probably exceed $200,000 a month.

The experience of other communities and towns in the vicinity of other military establishments, is that soldiers whenever they have leave explore their environment. They visit picture theatres, buy meals in resaurents, patronize cafes and bars, and generally seek recreation. As a rule they spend their money freely as long as it lasts. The businesses mentioned have their share of good days when the soldiers come to town.

Nevada County can offer the trainees at Camp Beale much more than amusements, food and drink. They will find fishing and hunting through the seasons and in the winter there are snow sports and many places in which to enjoy them.

As residence for families of officers and families that like to live nearby while their sons are undergoing training, Nevada City and Grass Valley can offer inducements that should, in due time, fill every vacant house.

Local Residents Attend Judge Tuttle Final Rites

Many Nevada Cityans attended the funeral rites in Sacramento yesterday for Judge Raglan Tuttle, 60, associate justice of the third district court of appeal and former Nevada County Superior Judge, who died in his home at 1225 Eleventh Avenue in Sacramento Monday.

DECEASED

Judge Raglan Tuttle

Officiating at the services were the Rt. Rev. Noel Porter, bishop of the Sacramento Episcopal Diocese. Cremation followed in the East Lawn Crematorium.

Justice Tuttle, an appellate court justice since his appointment December 29, 1938, by Governor Frank F. Merriam, died after an illness of several weeks.

He was born in Oakland but the family home was in Auburn, Placer County, where he received his elementary schooling. In 1905 he was graduated from the University of California. His grandfather, Charles A. Tuttle and his father, Frederick Pierson Tuttle, were graduated from the same university.

In 1907 Justice Tuttle received bachelor of laws degrees from the university and the Hastings College of Law. He was admitted to the state bar in 1906, a year before he received his LLB degree.

Following his schooling he became associated with the San Francisco law firm of Alexander D. Keyes, widely-known early day bay district attorney. He then returned to Auburn and joined the firm of his father and the office took the name Tuttle & Tuttle.

In 1926 Justice Tuttle was appointed to the superior court in Nevada County by Governor Friend W. Richardson, succeeding George L. Jones who had resigned. He continued to serve on the superior court bench until his appointment to the appellate court.

While in Nevada County Justice Tuttle helped organize and was the first president of the California State Superior Judges Association. He was widely known for several noted juvenile cases over which he presided in the superior court there.

In 1909 Tuttle married Claire Pedlar of San Francisco, a member of a pioneer family. Her grandfather was B. G. Hurlburt, early day jurist.

Justice Tuttle was from a family of lawyers, his father and grandfather having practiced in the state. His grandfather was a reporter in the state supreme court, starting in 1863. His mother, Susan Davis Tuttle, also was a member of a pioneer family.

For a number of years Justice Tuttle was an official of the Episcopal Diocese of Northern California, was a member of the Masonic Lodge of Auburn, the Elks Lodge and the Native Sons of the Golden West of Nevada City, Nevada County and the Kappa Sigma and Phi Delta Phi, national legal honorary societies.

The survivors are his wife, Mrs. Claire Tuttle; his three sons, Pierson and Franklin Tuttle of Sacramento and Richard Tuttle of army air forces; four sisters, Mrs. Frank Fitch of San Francisco, Mrs. Raymond Whitby, Mrs. Sayre Snook and Mrs. Clinton Munson of Berkeley, and two brothers, Charles and Frederick P. Tuttle of Auburn, Placer County.

CONDITION OF TERAN IMPROVES

The condition of John Teran, 65, Union Hill district resident severely beaten Sunday night, was reported by the officers to be improving. Teran is in the Community Hospital in Grass Valley.

Held in the county jail here for beating the aged man are Claude Prine and Preston Underwood, who were taken into custody by Captain Joseph Blake and Officer Carl Kitts of the California Highway Patrol.

The two men allegedly beat Teran after the latter requested they move from his driveway so he could drive in.

FORMER N. C. BOY HELPS TO BUILD BIG PLANE MARS

In a letter to his mother Mrs. C. W. Chapman Sargent Chapman writes from the Glenn Martin plant in Baltimore that he is mailing it from the great four motored plane Mars, weighing 70 tons fully loaded. He states that he, personally, among other duties had "to pass on and sign out each of 12,000 drawings" which were used in putting the huge plane together. He was one of the staff in its initial flight.

RUBBER MATS IN CITY POLICE CAR TO AID WAR

Today and tomorrow are the last days in which patriotic citizens can contribute rubber needed in winning the war. Chief of Police Max Solaro has taken the rubber mats out of the back floor of the police car and from the trunk and these have swelled Nevada City's contribution to the nation's rubber pile. He especially suggests to very car owner in the city that they contribute, not the rubber mat in front of the drivers seat, but all other mats in the car. He says if this is done the total when weighed up tomorrow evening will amount to many tons.

Olson Will Appoint Tuttle Successor Soon

Governor Culbert L. Olson asserted he will make an appointment to the third district court of appeal bench as soon as possible to prevent undue delay in the work of the court.

Olson expressed "shock and surprise" at the death of Justice Raglan Tuttle.

"I am sure I express the sentiment of the people of this district and of the state in expressing gratitude for his years of service on the bench,' the governor said.

No Sugar Increases For Industrial Users

The Nevada County rationing administrator, J. K. Osborne, reports that instructions received yesterday state that:

"We are advised that the sugar situation is such that there is not sufficient to go around to permit granting any increased allotments to industrial users. These applications should be returned with the advice that they cannot be granted.'

Nevada City Elks Out To Win Ball Championship

By "BABE" CHILDERS

The warm weather is once more with us and the young man's mind turns to sports.

It is usually a custom for at least one Nevada City lodge or organization to turn out a bang up ball club and they generally give all the teams a run for their money.

This year, as in years past, the Nevada City Elks has sponsored a softball team, and it is entered in the Grass Valley Intercity Softball League.

Last year the Elks came through with flying colors to win their league qualifying in the playoffs. But the locals were defeated by the Grass Valley Hardware in the playoffs.

So far this year the Elks have played only one game and won in a wild ninth inning by the score of 13 to 12.

This year's team consists of a number of experienced men. The boys that have seen action in previous years are Al Murray, Bob Tamblyn, Ed Frantz, Ike Hoskins, Babe Childers, Carl Steger, Jim Stephens, Bill Mullis, Marvin Haddy, Byron Kennedy, and Butch Ruth. Other players with plenty of experience are Roberts, Jamerson, Van Meter and Livesay.

This week the Nevada City Elks tangle with their traditional rivals, the Grass Valle Elks and it looks as if it will be a tough battle of thrills. So the public is asked to turn out for this game, which will be played tomorrow night at Memorial Park in Grass Valley at 8 o'clock.

Kennedy, a new player from Bakersfield rounds out a sparkling infield that turns in some very clean plays that are pleasing to Manager Tamblyn. The infield consists of Tamblyn, or Stephens, first, Haddy or Mullis, second, Kennedy, shortstop, Childers, third base and Frantz catcher.

Several of these Elks will participate in the Grass Valley-Nevada City baseball game Sunday at Watt Park to be played for the benefit of the USO.

TUNGSTEN ORE HITS NEW PEAK

SACRAMENTO, July 9.—(UP)—State division of mines officials said today that California mines already have exceeded their World War I tungsten production and have become the dominant source of the scarce material for the United Nations.

The division reported that California production in 1940 passed the $2,000,000 mark for the first time since 1918, with production valued at $2,267,135. The peak year for production in the state was 1916 when $4,471,521 worth of tungsten was produced.

Officials said that the tonnage produced in 1916 is being exceeded this year, although the value will not be approached because of the inflated prices prevailing in 1916.

The major supply of the world's tungsten formerly was taken from China, now cut off by the war.

USO BENEFIT BASEBALL GAME IN G. V. SUNDAY

A baseball game for the benefit of the Nevada County USO fund will be played at Watt Park in Grass Valley at 1 p. m. Sunday.

Nevada City and Grass Valley residents are urged to attend the benefit game, which will be highlighted by the appearance of many former well known diamond stars.

H. Ward Sheldon is manager of the Nevada City team and he has lined up a formidable squad to combat the Grass Valley old time players.

The money derived from the baseball game will be divided between Nevada City and Grass Valley to apply toward the USO quotas of the two towns. A total of $3500 must be raised in the county for the USO.

Nevada City's lineup will include such stalwarts as Ernest Brisebill, Marvin Hart, Kenneth Brady, Bill Livesay, Allan Cates, Ted Robinson, Herbert Gibson, Frank Prichard, George Gordon, John Odgers, John Zeberg, Burner Brook, A. Van Meter, Tony Campbell and Melvin Kopp.

PLACER JUNIOR CLOSES FRIDAY

The Placer Junior College office will close on July 10 for the summer vacation. Students having transcripts to be forwarded or military matters to be cleared, are urged to have their requests in not later than noon of July 10.

Many students in the eighteen to twenty year group are clearing their papers for V-1 at this time. High school graduates, whose transcripts are on file at the college, may obtain their V-1 clearance papers immediately.

Placer Junior College and Placer Union High School may operate on a six period basis during he coming year. Principal Harold Chastain, Registrar Clifford Wiegel and Dean of Instruction Stephen M. Barooshian are working on a plan to make the schools run the same length of time daily.

Under this plan, students residing at Grass Valley, Placerville, Nevada City, Roseville and Lincoln would be able to leave for home one hour earlier than in the past.

N. C. Boy Battles Japs In Midway

A letter received from Tom Legg by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Legg of this city, indicates clearly that he participated in the battle of Midway. Nearly two months ago young Legg phoned his parents that his ship, one of the large new submarines was about to "sail west." Until Tuesday they had not heard from him, save a brief note which told them exactly nothing of his whereabouts nor gave any details regarding his life aboard ship. But in the meantime they had written constantly to Tom, and had inclosed a clipping from the Nugget describing the exploits of Lieut. William (Wild Bill) Bennett in downing several Jap planes in air battles off New Guinea.

In Tom Legg's letter to his parents he writes:

"So Wild Bill Bennett was the first Nevada City boy to meet the Japs. Well, that makes me the second."

There was nothing in the letter to indicate his present location, except the mention of constant rain. It is only five months since Tom Legg enlisted in the Navy. He took a short course of training in sound detection devices and was immediately assigned to duty on a large new submarine. He states in his letter that the food and ventilation aboard the craft are excellent and the quarters very comfortable despite the narrow confines.

A Letter-

Rationing Board Needs Rubber As Much As Anyone

Dear .....:

Here we are again with the latest news from Nevada City.

Heard today that Happy Camp, Siskiyou County, where approximately 200 former Nevada City residents are now living, is threatened by a forest fire but there was no verification of this report.

The wives of John ONeill and Tom Arden, local newspapermen, extinguished with a garden hose a grass fire which started in a vacant lot near their homes but the funny thing about it the husbands, both always hungry fo news, didn't hear a thing about the fire until Jack Williams, a neighbor, spilled the beans. Johnny is figuring on giving his wife a special course in journalism in an effort to develop her "nose for news."

Boy! You've never had any worries if you aren't a member of sugor or tire rationing boards. Take the Nevada City rationing group for instance.

They are doing a fine job in allocating tires to eligible persons but you would think they were hoarding all the tires for themselves the way rumors circulate.

But there are no members of the local rationing board enjoying special priviliges. Jack Osborne still has the tires he had when the war started and they are getting smoother and smoothe every day. And George Calanan rarely takes out his big car because of the condition of the rubber. Calanan now uses his old car, which he had tried to give away for months but no one would take it. He managed to buy five used tires from someone at Columbia Hill and is now navigating about in the old bus.

To show you what the rationing board is up against a cantonment worker appeared last night and wanted a permit to buy a new car mind you! Cantonment workers who carry at least five passengers have been getting tires but that was the first demand for a new car. He threatened to telegraph to Leon Henderson when his request for a permit to buy a new car was not given.

There was a movement underway to have a drinking fountain installed in front of the Morgan and Powell Building. Tony Rore said he will appear before the city council at its next meeting to determine whether the city would approve having a fountain installed. The water would be iced from Bud Kyle's refrigeration plant.

And along with that idea there are many who would like to see a few benches placed at various spots in the business district. There is not a decent place to sit in the business district in Nevada City. Even those waiting for the bus to Grass Valley, on which travel has increased about three fold during the past couple of months, must stand.

The Lava Cap Mining Corporation has established its rustling office at Shaw's Hill, half way between Grass Valley and Town Talk. The office formerly was located at Town Talk.

Shortages in foodstuffs were felt in Nevada City during the past week.

For instance every store ran out of bananas and you could hardly buy a package of potato chips. And shell peanuts are always scarce.

Fire Control Assistant Nolan O'Neal and Forest Patrolman Charles Parsons have been awarded the Tahoe Forest's citation for the tallest tale of the year, according to Supervisor Guerdon Ellis. Oddly enough though, the tallest tale of the year was about the most ears seen in any one place by any two persons. It seems that O'Neal and Parsons were driving near Edwards Crossing on the Bloomfield road when suddenly a large rabbit was observed sitting in the middle of the road before them. According to O'Neal and Parsons, Mr. Rabbit refused to be frightened by the oncoming car and as they approached and came to a stop they were astounded to see the rabbit waving four ears in their direction instead of the customary two. Finally convinced of the earnestness of both men, Ellis crossed his fingers and allowed this story to be printed.

Until next week, adieu.

Those in charge of the scrap rubber drive have been forced to tell the citizens again that every bit of the collected rubber is being turned over to the government and that any surplus of funds is to be given to the U. S. O. Red Cross and army and navy relief societies. The oil companies, which are supervising the collections, do not make one penny out of the drive and are contributing their part as a patriotic gesture.

Just why is it necessary during patriotic campaigns such as these to shush a lot of underground talk designed to cast reflection on what is being done? Who spreads these stories casting doubt and uncertainty on things American? Are fifth columnists at work in the community? Or, are some of the citizens so foolish as to spread talk without first verifying its truth?

America is at war and presumably every American citizen is out to win that war, and do his fullest part, no matter what it may cost him. That being the case let us trust our neighbors more and be careful about what we say about them.

Too many ugly rumors are floating around and too many people are promoting their circulation. The service men aren't the only ones who should zip their lips. Too many otherwise sound citizens are talking too much about things of which they know little.

JUSTICE TUTTLE

Death has struck twice within the vear in the third district court of appeals, sending Justice Raglan Tuttle to join the late Chief Justice John F. Pullen in the great bevond.

Again, as in Pullen's death, the appellate court is deprived of one of its most distinguished members. Descended from a long line of legal celebrities, Justice Tuttle was born and obtained his start in the practice of the profession in Nevada County. He served there many years as a superior court judge before being elevated to the higher bench by Governor Frank F. Merriam.

Tuttle's demise provides another vacancy for Governor Olson to fill. He will have difficulty in finding a judge who can measure up to the caliber of this man who learned justice in the hill country and whose wisdom was tempered with mercy in the many decisions he was called upon to make in his many years on the bench.

Justice Tuttle served his state well and was always a credit to the governors who appointed him to the two judgeships that he filled successively during most of his long and active legal career.—Sacramento Union.

TOO WASTEFUL AGAIN

The traffic fatalities were so numerous over the holiday weekend that too many Americans obviously celebrated their Independence Day by being too free with their rubber and their gasoline.

The highways in California were congested with automobiles, traveling at slower pace than a year ago, but almost as thick in numbers.

A rubber drive is now nearing its close after an extension of a 10-day period because the first contributions were disappointing and far below expectations. While the government was vainly trving to get enough tonnage to supply some of the military and war industry needs the American people were wearing down their tires and using up millions of precious pounds with their holiday driving.

The American people haven't yet come to realize how acute the rubber shortage actually is and how little likelihood exists that civilian tires will be obtainable during the war's duration. Lack of rubber in this country may well be one of the determining factors as to whether complete victory can be won.

Wasting of rubber on the holidays was one of the worst ways in which to spend the weekend. But the American people are too optimistic and rely too much on their confidence in the future.

To make up for a wasteful weekend, American citizens should again go through their belongings and hunt up additional rubber to contribute in the scrap campaign. That will atone to some extent for the fling of traveling they have just had.

PRIVATE POHLEY WRITES LETTER FROM AFRICA

From Somewhere In Africa William Pohley of this city received a letter this week from his son, Pvt. William R. Pohley, a member of the United States Armed Forces. Pohley is a member of the tank corps.

The letter was written on June 23. It reads:

"I suppose you are wondering where I am and what I am doing. Well I am somewhere in Aprica and not at the end of my journey as yet. When I get back to the states I will have lots to tell you and native works of art, gifts and souvenirs to give to Eva, Ed and Bobby. I am going to try and get articles from all the countries I pass through. I am having quite an experience travelling so far. The place I am staying at now is something you have to see to believe. The food is par excellent and the quarters are clean and comfortable to live in. It is costing the army a pound ($5.40) a day for each man's rations here. The outfit I am in are quite chummy with one another, including the officers.

"I wouldn't give $20,000 for the experience and sights I have seen on this trip providing I get back home to realize the pleasure of it. We dine English style and Sgt. Prall and I have a Negro boy to do everything but think for us. This is the bed of roses but it will have its thorns later on.

"Give all my friends my best regards and say hello to them."

Marshall Geiselman, well known music instrucor, is reported to be in a serious condition at his home in Auburn. Geiselman formerly made his home in Nevada City.

AN OWL TO THE RESCUE

News in Rhyme over KJBS daily at 12:30 P. M.

Written by Harley M. Leete, Jr.

From Australia comes a humorous tale,
That wasn't funny then,
Of a flier off the beaten trail,
One of the Army Air Corps' men.

He battled it out with a surly Jap,
Was forced to land his plane:
Then he found himself in a swampish trap,
And sought release in vain.

He hunted hard for food to eat,
While crocodiles hunted him.
Twice nature had him almost beat:
'Twas a case of sink of swim!

This part may sound like a crude, crass whopper,
But once as he lay in distress
He gobbled a startled but choice grass hopper,
All garnished with water cress.

Later on he cudgled a healthy owl,
And ate its legs, though raw,
The flesh of course—distinctly fowl,
But hunger knows no law.

He ate the legs and saved the rest,
With foresight, careful, sure.
For game that's high is oft the best.
If one can just endure.

For three long days he beat his way,
Through tangled rush and root—
For a while it looked as though he'd stay,
To live on swampland fruit.

But then a plane flew overhead,
And dove 'till very low,
And a can plumb full of meat and bread,
Hit the earth a cheery blow.

Our man threw the owl to a crocodile,
And upon his happy face,
Big tears ran down to a thankful smile—
He'd won the hunger race!

MEMBER OF SEARLS FAMILY TAKES BRIDE IN RENSSELAERVILLE

Miss Ethel Emily Green, daughter of Walter Lawrence Green of Tacoma, Wash., became the bride on June 20th of Robert James Searls, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Searls, Jr. of 1 Gracie Square, New York and Rensselaerville.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. V. Moldenhawer in Rensselaerville Presbyterian Church. A reception was held at the summer home of the bridegroom's parents. Miss Doris E. Green was her sister's maid of honor and the best man was the bridegroom's brother, Fred Searls III.

The bride was graduated from the Knox School at Cooperstown, N. Y. and was a sophomore at Smith College this year.

Searls graduated from Norwood School and attended Norwich University. He plans to enter the Army Air Force in the autumn.

Searls' father is executive of the Newmont Mining Corporation ,and now one of three men referred to as the "brains" of the War Production Board by Donald M. Nelson, war production director. The family residence in Nevada City will be the summer home of the newly married couple.

Taxes Levied In County Analyzed

Of the $425,614 in property taxes levied in Nevada County for the year which closed on June 30, a total of 7.4 per cent was for general city taxes, 56.2 per cent was for county purposes, 35.2 per cent for school districts and 1.2 per cent for special districts, an analysis of property tax levies in California counties, made public today by California Taxpayers association shows.

A total of $36,102 was levied for general city purposes in the county, $272,632 was levied for county purposes, $170,975 was levied in school taxes including school bonds, and $5,905 was levied in special district taxes. Special city district tax levies are not included, the association stated, no data being available.

"What local governing boards do with the budgets they are now in the process of making will determine the amount of local property taxes levied for 1942-43—the tax bills property owners will receive in November,' the taxpayers association declared.

NEVADA CITY PER CAPITA DEBT IS ONLY $7.36

The city of Nevada City with a bonded deft of $18,000 and a per capita debt of $7.36 at June 30, 1941, ranked 211th from the highest among the 286 California cities in per capita debt, analysis of the indebtedness of California cities, completed today by California Taxpayers association, shows.

Debt payments of the city amounted to $1,050, for interest and $3,000 for redemption, the association found.

Payments on bonded debt are the only place where government expenditures cannot be reduced to meet war conditions, the Taxpayers' association declared. After a debt has been voted by the people and the bonds have been issued, payments of interest and redemption must be met when due until the debt has been wiped out. However, debt payments are only one of the expenditures of city and other governments.

Local government budgets for 1942-43 are being made up during the present time. To the spending and activity programs which are financed by those budgets, no better measure than that set by Secretary Morgenthau recently can be applied. Said the Secretary of the Treasury:

"If we spend our money extravagantly, carelessly, or even to satisfy what would have been our normal wants in normal times — we take away from our fighting forces the supplies they need for victory. Every time you are about to spend money, your conscience should ask you 'Do you really need what you are going to buy? Can't you do without it? Why not wait until after the war?

A public opinion demanding drastic economy by local governments today will help economy minded officials to keep those governments from carrying on a spending spree which will be a menace to the war effort and to our economic future, the association declared.

CALIFORNIA GAINS MILLION IN YEAR NEW POPULATION

By Ralph H. Taylor

In war time, changes occur which, in normal times, would make Page 1 headlines, but which are hardly noted, or at least little considered, when interest is centered on the war effort.

Such changes have "happened here", and while the public in a vakue way undoubtedly knows about it, few have stopped to ponder what it will mean to the California of tomorrow.

The untold—or at least undigested—story is simply this: California, during the past twelve months, has gained in population nearly a million new residents. The defense workers migration to this state has outstripped anything that happened in the "days of gold" or in the drab days which came after the Dust Bowl.

Conservatively, 800,000 persons have moved into the state since the war production program was inaugurated, aside from the military. Probably, the figure is nearer a million. In ordinary times, every Chamber of Commerce in the state would be bragging about it; the All-Year Club and Californians, Inc., would be devoting three color pamphlets to it, legislative committees would be resolving about it—and the real estate industry would have the welcome sign hung on every lamp post.

But because the national emergency has over shadowed all other events, the evolutionsary and revolutionary changes in California have received scant attention, even from our boost bodies. Yet much of this new population will undoubtedly remain after the war is over — and California, for better or worse, has permanently changed status during the war period. It has become one of the top ranking industrial states in the Union.

A decade ago, California was in 17th place among the industrial states; a year or two ago, it had climbed to 7th place. Today, it is one of the biggest industrial states in the whole country. Today it has undertaken the tremenddous job of producing more than one tenth of all the war materials which the country needs for victory. Yet it has little more than one twentieth of the nation's total manpower, even with its recent phenomenal gains in population.

What will happen after the war is over? Will the great manufacturing and industrial concerns dismantle their plants here and return bag and baggage, to Chicago, Pittsburg, New York or the old industrial centers of the New England states? Or will California retain, in peace time, the industrial leadership which it attained in war?

Will California be able to absorb into its peace time economy the million new citizens who have come here to build ships and aircraft and other war equipment? Or will tens of thousands of them, thrown out of emploment by shut downs in war industries, go on the relief rolls and become a semi-permanent charge against the taxpayers?

The question is of vital importance to the whole state. It is of particular importance to California agriculture, for this state's farming industry, long compelled to ship the bulk of its products to the eastern seaboard, will benefi tremendously if it has a greatly increased industrial population to feed right in its home market. Conversely, agriculture will be one of the worst sufferers if factories close down and relief rolls lengthen.

Inevitably, there will be serious dislocations during the post war eriod, and no one, at this time, can safely forecast how long it will take nor how much it will cost—both in money and in loss of employment—to shift from war production to the production of consumer goods. California, being one of the nation's greatest producers of both agricultural and industrial commodities for the war effort, will have one of the most serious change-over problems to cope with when the war is ended. But in this writer's opinion, California, if its leaders have the necessary foresight and vision, will retain its newly won industrial leadership. A vast reservoir of power and raw materials is here to make this state an ideal location for big industries; there is an ideal workers' climate here; there are shipping facilities here, near at hand, to tap the new markets which will doubtless be opened up in the Pacific. Here, too, is the No. 1 farm state of the nation, capable of feeding and clothing a population double or treble that which California has today. And industry, we believe, has come to stay, it is probably one of the most significant changes in our economic history.

BPWC PRESIDENT URGES MEMBERS TO REGISTER TO VOTE

Northern District BPWC president Marie Williford, of Grass Valley, announced today that all BPWC clubs should encourage their members to register and vote in the fall elections. The deadline for registering is July 16.

Mrs. Williford stated "Democracy is endangered in war time. By using the right and privilege of voting we are helping preserve democracy."

"The privilege of voting is not to he lightly handled. It means more than just marking a ballot," she said.

"Each candidate should be thoroughly studied—his background, his platform, his beliefs. Each bill or referendum should be studied to ascertain that it contains no veiled meanings, that it will be beneficial to the majority, that it is really necessary."

Mrs. Williford urges "that we encourage every eligible man and woman to register and to vote, not only to 'Strengthen Democracy for Defense,' but to strengthen it for the future."

BANK'S RECORD IS APPLAUDED

Bank of America's mid-year statement of condition, which appears elsewhere in this issue, is pointed to by local officers of the bank as evidence of the institution's constantly growing ability to serve the entire state and, particularly, to continue major financial assistance to war production industries.

The bank's continued growth is attributed to devotion of the statewide staff to a policy of public service, to efficient management, and to the loyal support of customers whose savings and other surplus funds function as "fighting dollars" while on deposit.

Increasing Capacity of Statewide Bank to Spur More War Production

Bank of America Mid-year Statement Shows Progress

The statement of condition of Bank of America as of June 30, 1942, shows deposits at the all-time high mark of $1,958,430,000, an increase of $272,942,000 over a year ago and an increase of $50,047,000 since December 31, 1941. Total resources were $2,143,202,000, a gain of $265,464,000 over a year ago.

LARGE LOAN VOLUME

Loans and discounts outstanding aggregated $889,353,000 which is $44,887,000 higher than a year ago. Since December 31, 1941, loans and discounts decreased $25,216,000, while bond investments increased $81,437,000.

Earnings after operating expenses and accruals for taxes were $12,618,000. From this total $2,133,000 was reserved for depreciation of bank premises and amortization of bond premiums and $2,053,000 was set up in reserves and applied to the absorption of losses or the revaluation of assets. After payment of $5,267,000 in dividends at the annual rate of $2.40 per share on the common stock and $2.00 per share on the preferred stock, and after profit-sharing bonus to employes, capital funds were increased from earnings for the six months' period by $3,119,000. This, with the dividend, is equal to approximately $4.00 per share per annum on the common stock.

WAR RESERVES

Following the policy previously established, one-half of the net increase in undivided profits was transferred to the war contingencies reserve.

Capital funds, including reserves, now total $158,767,000, which is an increase of $2,024,000 for the year, after the utilization of $3,882,450 to retire 77,649 shares of preferred stock during the period, and after applying $842,000 of an unallocated reserve, previously set up for the purpose, to reduce the book value of certain banking premises, in addition to normal depreciation.

WAR PRODUCTION

President L. M. Giannini stated that the curtailed demand for ordinary civilian credit had made more funds available to finance war production. "We are continuing to carry forward our policy of unstinted support to America's victory program," he said.
